Cultural migration. Diffusion. Change. Western Carpathians and Eurasian Space. Aeneolithic.

The project goal is to learn type of interactions of steppe communities of the Yamnaya culture and the Corded Ware culture with the post-Baden autochthonous world in the inner Carpathians. Besides the theoretical and terminological sphere, the interdisciplinary research, in which mainly comparative methods will be used, is focused on three basic courses of study. The first is social sphere that includes analysis of character and reasons that caused social movements in the end of early prehistory. The second is communication course (trans-Carpathian routes) and the third is reflection of multicultural attributes in archaeological sources together with palaeogenetic processes of The Indo-Europeans. The project outputs will be published in several articles in scientific journals, reviewed foreign proceedings and in a monograph.
